Flight of the Silver Queen

It was a long and dangerous journey. Van Rynveld and Quintin Brand flew in a plane called the Silver Queen. They travelled from England to Italy. Then, a few days later, they took off again for Egypt.

Eventually, 44 days later, they landed in Cape Town and won. The newspaper didn't give them £10,000, but only £5,000. This was because they didn't use the same plane for the whole journey. But it was still an incredible journey.

take off (phr v) /'teɪk, ɒf/ to leave the ground (for aeroplanes) land (v) /lænd/ to return to the ground (for aeroplanes)
