"Education is a progressive discovery of our own ignorance." Will Durant (U.S. historian)

In this quotation Will Durant wanted to say that education isn't only taking knowledges, but taking the information, how many things we hadn't known yet. Actually, education isn't for people all together, but for ~~one~~ <sup>the one</sup> person.

It's impossible not to agree with the historian, that's really great idea. To tell the truth, I think so. Education isn't your marks at school, it's not your ~~tones of~~ homework, ~~homeworks~~, it's something more in your mind, it's your meeting with the world, your feeling of the world, ~~opinion to environment~~. No matter, how smart you are, ~~no matter~~, how you passed ~~the~~ State Exams, your love for science is the most important thing. For example, it's not important, what you know or don't know, it's much more important your own opinion and understanding your plan of thinking. As I said, I absolutely agree with Will Durant, if we'll study more, we'll learn things and subjects he didn't know before, so every next step to getting education will give us knowledges, which we even didn't know about before.

In conclusion, I can say, the phrase "Education is a progressive discovery of our own ignorance" is completely right. With getting education we get not only knowledges of this sphere, but how much we hadn't known too. So, I really liked this phrase by Will Durant, because here we can see parts of philosophy and deep-mind point of view. / 214
