Nowadays, the question of whether it is important for a teenager to practice sport regularly or not is being widely discussed. To my mind, physical exercises are extremely important for everyone, especially for teens.

Firstly, doing sports enhances one's health. For example, swimming helps with back problems, ~~and exercising in a during chill weather~~ so does stretching. Also, ~~exercising~~ <sup>74</sup> ~~reg~~ exercising regularly can prevent obesity, which is quite common among teens these days, and keep a person generally fit. <sup>70</sup>

Secondly, <sup>BY</sup> practicing a sport regularly, one can make new friends. When one attends fitness club or sport classes, they meet a lot of new people with different interests, mindsets and goals. Talking from the personal experience, doing sport brings you to a whole other community, in which people can ~~not only~~ <sup>136</sup> motivate you on your so-called "sport journey", ~~but~~ also help you to become a more self-confident person. <sup>136</sup>

Thirdly, exercising can help one to release their stress. As we all know, being a teenager can be unbelievably stressful not only because of the amount of different new responsibilities, but also due to the changes in one's body. Some sports like yoga or running, or even boxing can help a person with releasing their negative emotions and stress. <sup>194</sup>

To conclude, I'd like to say, that practicing a sport regularly is very important when you are a teen, ~~and there is a huge amount of reasons for and the reasons for that, that I have previously mentioned, are only a few in a huge amount of the ones that~~ since it can help one in multiple areas of their life.
