When you're a teenager the whole world ^{is} opened to you from the other side. It's time when your body changes fast and sometimes you can't even ~~just~~ say what's going on, ~~with it~~. We're starting to grow grow not only ^{as} like a human (I mean our body) but ~~also~~ as a person. ~~It's~~ But most of us ^{are} forgetting about a physical part of growing. That's why we ~~are~~ ^{can} getting health issues further. As for me, it's important to do ^{exercises} activities and try to live healthy or something. Firstly ~~at all~~, it helps to keep our ^{us} fit. And secondly, ~~it~~ it gives more forces to us and confidence. We need to drink ^e enough water and eat healthy food mostly. Also we need to remember about mental health. It's much easier to live the life when you're mentally stable, for real. ⁷²⁵ By the way, sport helps ^{us} as well. Sometimes it's like a therapy. We need to remember ~~as~~ that our body ^{is} such a fragile fragile thing, so we always need ~~to train~~ do sports to make it more solid. ⁷⁴⁴

If we want to be happy and live as long as we could, we need to be healthy as "outside", as "inside". That ~~whitro~~ ~~is~~ And sports really help us with it. Also ~~sport~~ it helps us to make new friends: for example in GYM, why not? I mean it's ^a chance as well.
