Should students have a long ~~summer~~ summer holiday or should terms be longer? In every country there's its own situation, but ~~which~~ which is more convenient for students?

Firstly, students usually forget most of information during big summer holidays. According to this, it's better to have many short holidays during the year, because in this way students won't be bored due to a long time of permanent learning in school.

Otherwise, there're problems with leisure activities if we talk about Russia. One of them is financial problems among citizens. Most of people can't travel only in their own country, so it's not only in summer. Anyway, this factor is depends on place where are you living.

And what about preparing for adult life? There are no summer holidays when you're working, usually. It's also a advantage of replacing long summer holidays with many short ones.

Summer holidays have their own pros and cons. It depends on each country and its conditions what system of holidays it's choosing. The most important thing that students must have a rest, but form of it can be different. It would be a great decision if we tried both of them as an experiment.
