We've been discussing school holidays today. The list of opinions included a month or even two weeks long summer holidays, or ~~canceling~~ cancelling them at all. I don't know how wicked should a student be to have a desire of cancelling a vacation for everyone including themselves...

Never mind. Fools are fools and there's no way to help. My thought is simple and obvious: a summer holiday should be three months long, from ^{the} 1st of June to ^{the} 31st of August.

Firstly, it's easy to count. These months ~~contain~~ ^{form} a season: summer. "Summer holidays" are understood much better than a "holiday from 20th of June to 20th of July". Summer holiday doesn't bring a need to sum up days, weeks and decades; everyone knows what is summer.

Secondly, the summer is the worst season to learn and the best one to rest. It's possible to teach and study during the fall or winter and spring, thanks to waterproof school buildings and central heating. But it's impossible when the weather is hot and humid. Summer is good for a number of leisure activities: sports, walks, outdoor games, which can't be played in mud or snow.

Also, summer is the best season of ^{the year} on many resorts, and the only one when the sea is warm enough to swim.

I can give even more reasons, but let's be fair: that's enough.

A summer holiday should be all summer long, otherwise learning during the summer becomes a tor^{ture}.
