I was really surprised when I read the e-mail.

Usually, I don't check e-mails. If I have to do it, I don't read them. You might say: "What if your friend wrote you an e-mail?" "Who writes e-mails when you have messengers?" One day, I was checking my e-mails when I saw that one, which I thought was special. I opened it and I was shocked. If you had that e-mail, I'm sure you would be amazed.

That e-mail was about a competition that I won. It had ~~some~~ a link to ~~some~~ a website. At first, I was excited, but then I realised it was a scam. I was interested in content that website had, so I clicked on it and regretted. I won't explain what was there, but it was disturbing. I left the website and deleted the e-mail.

So, my advice to you - curiosity killed the cat. Don't go to suspicious websites.
